Professor A. L. Stone returned last evening from Helena where he has been attending a meeting of the city superintendents of schools of the state since last Wednesday.

J. H. Laird is the recipient of a handsome and unique cane from his friend, H. A. McMillan, recently from South America. The cane is dressed with twisted wires, the work of South American natives.

Mrs. B. Leonard entered a complaint in Judge Fitzgerald's court yesterday against her husband, charging him with wife-beating. Leonard was beastly drunk when found, and was placed in jail to sober off.

J. Feely and Thomas Condon, the two men who were arrested for fighting in Nagle's 5-cent saloon at the corner of Front and Main streets, were yesterday arraigned in the police court and were each fined $10 and costs.

A few days afterward Joseph Peters, manager for D. J. Hennessey & Co., learned that Daly had left the works and had also drawn in his time in full up to the date of his departure. A warrant for his arrest was immediately sworn out, charging him with obtaining goods under false pretenses. He was arrested yesterday and arraigned in the police court. Judge Fitzgerald fined him $20 and sent him over for a 30 days' sojourn.

THE BALL IS A-ROLLING

But It Hasn't Acquired Much Momentum Yet.

CANDIDATES FOR OFFICE

No Great Strife Has Developed On Either Side of the Political House—Mr. Shovlin the Next Mayor.

The annual city election is approaching, but the politicians are taking things very quietly. Both republicans and democrats alike remain inactive and are making no significant moves, although a little quiet work here and there is causing a slight ripple on the surface. Candidates, while not very scarce, are not coming forward so rapidly or so fiercely as they might, especially candidates for the mayoralty. J. B. Loscoe's name is mentioned by prominent republicans for the office of mayor, but it is not known whether he would accept the nomination if it were tendered him. He is certainly making no fight for the nomination. Lawyer English is also spoken of as a possible candidate for the office of city attorney, and may possibly be put up by the republicans against the democratic nominee. Whom the republicans will run for police magistrate has not yet even been hinted.

In the ranks of the democrats everything is quiet and serene. Dennis Shovlin, the present alderman of the First ward, is prominently mentioned as a candidate for mayor. Mr. Shovlin is an old and staunch democrat, and while serving as alderman has made a good, clean record. Should he secure the nomination his majority would be sweeping. J. B. Boardman as city attorney and Judge T. J. Fitzgerald as police magistrate have filled the offices with credit to themselves and for the interests of the people of the city. These two gentlemen will doubtless endeavor to secure a renomination at the democratic convention. Col. T. O'Leary is also in the field as a candidate for the office of city attorney, and Judge Rockwell is spoken of for the police magistrature. Both are good democrats and well known in this city.

In the several wards of the city there are to be four, possibly five, new aldermen elected, one in each ward and perhaps two in the Fourth, providing Alderman J. B. Johnston, who has gone to Butte has taken up his permanent residence in that city.

The aldermen whose terms expire this spring and in whose places candidates are to be elected are Sylvan Hughes of the Fourth ward, P. J. Maloney of the Third, E. Murray of the First, and A. C. MacCallum of the Second.

For the office of city treasurer, John Delury, the present incumbent, if favorably spoken of and it is thought the republicans may put no candidate in the field against him.

AT THE THEATER.

Corinne on Wednesday Night—Other Attractions of the Week.

CORINNE who is to appear for the first time in Anaconda on Wednesday night. The Philadelphia Times says: "The popularity of Corinne and her talented company was never more strongly exemplified in this city than last evening. Long before the first act of the evening the house was packed and the audience was so large and so expectant that nearly one thousand people had to go away disappointed unable to obtain admission to any part of the building. Seats were placed down the center aisle and along the side of the building, even the space devoted to the orchestra was invaded, and a large number of people had to be content with standing room. There is a pleasing newness about the piece that is refreshing. The dialogue is bright and witty, telling a simple but ingenious story, set to charming and merry music, with here and there a comic and topical song, a dash of the mock heroic and a tinge of sentimentalism. The piece is beautifully staged, several of the scenes are remarkable for their prodigious richness and elegance of design and the costumes are uncommonly handsome and picturesque. Corinne as Corinne, the dancing girl, a part that fits her like a glove, is the feature of the performance. The Spanish dances are a revelation, and are done by this most expert and clever artist with a dash and abandon that is both dreamy and exhilarating and a precision and skill that commands the applause of the most critical."

John Dillon who appears at Evans opera house next Thursday evening goes to where as a stranger. His work is appreciated from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the St. Lawrence to the Gulf. During all his long stage career, he has yet to receive an adverse newspaper criticism or an unkind word. Moreover the avalanche of universal praise is for his legitimate work as an artist. He is a gentleman and a sterling comedian, and as such has won a name and fame. No one who pays his money for seats at one of Dillon's performances need fear disappointment, he is patronizing an attraction endorsed by the press and public of an entire continent. The mere mention of his name will bring a smile of pleasant recollection to the face of thousands who have had the pleasure of witnessing his splendid work. Manager Maguire has made arrangements for the appearance of the Boston Opera company at the opera house on Friday and Saturday evenings. The company number 24 people and come to Anaconda after a successful three weeks engagement in Portland. Two popular and favorite comic operas will be produced, "The Mascot" and "Olivette." The Daily News, Vancouver, B. C., says: "A great success was scored last night at the Imperial Opera house by the Boston Comic Opera company, who presented the comic opera 'Mascot' to the people of Vancouver. The chorus, which forms one of the chief parts of the opera, was strong; on the whole the chorus was well rehearsed. Mr. George W. W. as Boco fairly brought down the house with his clever antics, and proved throughout the piece the leading spirit of the company. Miss Pauline Harvey as Bettina the Mascot acted and sang with great taste and ability."

PUGET SOUND CITIES.

San Francisco Acknowledging a Future Dangerous Rival.

From the Daily Alta California, March 4. In the next 10 years the Sound country is destined to undergo a great transformation. That a large commercial city is going to be built somewhere there is now apparent, but the exact location is yet unsettled; that is, common consent has not fixed upon the place. Will it be Tacoma, Seattle, Fairhaven, or some point as yet considered unimportant? During the last decade, which embraces practically the entire railroad era of the state, Washington has increased in population from 75,118 in 1880 to 340,350 in 1900. And it must be remembered that the great bulk of this increase came in the last five years of this period. Tacoma has grown from a village of 1,098 inhabitants to a thriving, well-built city of 35,858 inhabitants. Seattle sprang in ten years from a population of 3,533 to a bustling, pushing city, with cable and electric street car lines, of 43,914 inhabitants. She has grown more in a decade than Portland, Maine, has in one hundred and fifty years. She has direct rail communication, and so has Tacoma for that matter, with San Francisco, and with the East by three transcontinental lines, and will soon be connected by a fourth. The Union Pacific, Northern Pacific and Canadian Pacific all center in there, and within a year the Great Northern will be steaming into the Sound. It is true that the Northern Pacific's nominal terminus is at Tacoma, while the Canadian Pacific's nominal terminus is at Vancouver, B. C., and the Union Pacific comes up from Portland, Ore. Nevertheless all these lines run into the Sound, and it is a competing point. The same can be said of Tacoma, Fairhaven, which lies farther north, on Bellingham bay, opposite the straits of Juan de Fuca, is the future terminus of the Great Northern railway, which is pushing westward from St. Paul, and will be completed by the 1st of January, 1902. Fairhaven has sprung from a clearing a few years ago to be a city of some 7,000 inhabitants. It will soon have all the rail connections that Tacoma and Seattle now have. It has a magnificent lumber, coal and farming region around it, and deep-water anchorage for all the ships in the world at its very doors. To the south stretches the Sound, with its bays, havens and deep-water channels, to the Northwest lies the Gulf of Georgia, while straight to the west is the Strait of Fuca and the Pacific ocean. Seattle and Tacoma have the start in population and capital, but Fairhaven possesses undeniable elements of greatness. She has deep water, safe anchorage and compelling rail communication with the South and East. Now, which of these places will be the metropolis of the North Pacific? Beyond all question Tacoma, Seattle and Fairhaven will always be mercantile and shipping points of considerable importance, but which of them will take the prize and become the great city of the North? In all probability the next census will show a population in Washington of nearly if not quite a million. The Canadian Pacific's China and Australian steamship lines will practically be lines to the chief port of the Sound, for there will be the financial, trade and rail competing center. Whichever place it is will have a population of 100,000 or more in 1900. It is not necessary that this city should rival the material injury of San Francisco, but our city cannot afford to be slack about opportunities. Here is the natural metropolis of the entire Pacific coast, and here it will be unless an extraordinary policy of supineness be pursued by our citizens. Hopefully the metropolis of the Sound should be to San Francisco what Boston is to New York. If it is more our people will be largely to blame. But it is well to remember that there is a young giant growing in the north country and that he is ambitious and energetic. It is well to encourage him, but it is also well not to let him seize all he aspires to seize.

DEBORAH LODGE NO. 6.

The Order of Daughters of Hebeekah Organized in Anaconda.

The most interesting event in the history of the order of I. O. O. F. of this city took place last evening, when Deborah Lodge No. 6, Daughters of Hebeekah, was instituted. The occasion was all in all one of the pleasantest in the history of the lodge, and marked the advent of a new and worthy branch of the lodge in this city. On the evening train from Butte about 25 members of the Hebeekah degree team of Marion Lodge No. 2 arrived, and were escorted to the Odd Fellows hall by a delegation appointed to receive the guests. Grand Master Kinney of Butte and the other officers of the grand lodge were present to institute the new lodge. The lodge room was filled with guests and a royal time was enjoyed by all. A dainty luncheon was served during the evening and various brief speeches and toasts of different members served to make the occasion one long to be remembered by those who were present.

The officers who were chosen for the new lodge were: Noble Grand, Joseph Wear; Vice Grand, Mrs. D. Cohen, Jr.; Treasurer, Mrs. C. H. Tracy; Secretary and recording Secretary, E. O. Farrell.

Among the guests from Butte may be mentioned, Mesdames Schiller, Moore, Bickel, Fifer, Schatz, ein, Mustard, Hoyt, Mendleson, Hillbroner, Buell, Clark, Freyer, Green, Hols, Bailey, York, Madison, Hamilton, Hols, Hols, Miss Mary Broughton, Messrs. S. E. Holmes, J. J. York, N. C. Kinney, Jones, Freyer, Schiller.

O'MARA'S BIG JAG.

He Went Home and Beat His Poor Wife Most Cruelly.

About 10 o'clock Friday night a man approached Officer White on Main street and breathlessly stated that a man was beating his wife to death in the lower part of the town. Officers White and Ieman followed the man to a small residence on Third street, just below the Mountain View house, where Officer Pickle had already arrived. There seemed to be some excitement within and the officers proceeded to investigate matters. Thomas O'Mara, his wife and several small children were inside the house and the old man was making things lively. O'Mara had come home drunk, and after retiring the liquor he had drunk seemed to have a demoralizing effect, for he began to abuse and beat his wife. It was with great difficulty that the officers could do anything with him. They finally were obliged to start him for the jail clad in nothing but an undershirt. After going a ways, however, they took him back and, forcing his clothes upon him again, marched him away to jail.

O'Mara was arraigned before Judge Fitzgerald yesterday afternoon, when it was shown by Mrs. O'Mara, O'Mara's mother-in-law and many other trustworthy witnesses that O'Mara was a very tough character and had been in the habit of beating his wife in the most outrageous manner. The judge gave him 60 days in the county jail and fined him $25 and costs. Mrs. O'Mara seemed to be a quiet and inoffensive little woman.
